Commissioner for Patents

Sir:

I, David G. Duckworth, declare the following to be true and correct.

1. The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office issued an Office Action in connection with the above-identified patent application on December 22, 2006 requiring that a response be mailed with the payment of a three month extension on or before June 22, 2007.

2. The undersigned filed a response with the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office including a Petition for Extension of Time of three months and including the fee for such an extension on June 21, 2007, one day before the deadline.

3. After conducting a search of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office records, Applicant has learned that the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office has issued a Notice of Abandonment of the instant application.

4. This Petition to Withdraw Holding of Abandonment has been filed within two weeks after the undersigned first became aware that the Office had no evidence of receipt of Applicant's correspondence. This two week delay was due to it conducting an investigation including a search of the undersigned's bank records to confirm that the Office had cashed Applicant's check in support of the Petition for Extension of Time.

5. A true and correct copy of Applicant's response including Combined Amendment & Petition for Extension of Time Under 37 C.F.R. §1.136(a); Amendment and Request for Reconsideration; Certificate of Mailing by Express Mail; Transmittal Letter; Declaration and Power of Attorney for Patent Application; check for payment of the extension fee; and return postcard that was mailed by the undersigned on June 21, 2007 is attached as Exhibit 1.

6. A true and correct copy of the Express Mail Mailing Label No. EV900412505US reflecting mailing of Applicant's response is attached as Exhibit 2.

7. A true and correct copy of the postcard including the Office's stamp reflecting receipt on June 21, 2007 is attached herewith as Exhibit 3.

8. Finally, a true and correct copy of Applicant's bank statement reflecting that the check mailed on Applicant's behalf in support of the three month extension of time (check no. 1026) was cashed by the Office on June 27, 2007 is attached herewith as Exhibit 4.

In support of the above-identified application, a separate copy of Applicant's response is submitted herewith. It is requested that it be entered and abandonment be withdrawn.

I hereby declare that all statements made herein of my own knowledge are true and that all statements made on information and belief are believed to be true; and further that these statements were made with the knowledge that willful false statements and the like so made are punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, under Section 1001 of Title 18 of the U.S. Code and that such willful false statements may jeopardize the validity of the application or any trademark registration issued thereon.

Please cancel Claims 1 - 20 and add Claims 21 - 26 as follows:

Claims 1 - 20 (Cancelled)

21. (New) A computer interface controller including cursor and button controllers, the computer interface controller comprising:

a housing adapted to reside within a person's fingers against a person's index and middle fingers;

affixing means for attaching said housing within a person's fingers to a person's index and middle fingers;

a cursor controller for providing X-Y control of a cursor on a computer screen, said cursor controller positioned within said housing so as to be controlled by a person's thumb when said housing is attached to a person's index and middle fingers;

a first button member affixed to said housing, said first button member positioned so as to be depressable by a person's index finger when said housing is attached to a person's index and middle fingers; and a second button member affixed to said housing, said second button member positioned so as to be depressable by a person's middle finger when said housing is attached to a person's index and middle fingers.

22. (New) The computer interface controller of claim 21 wherein said affixing means includes a pair of rings constructed of a hook or pile fastener adapted to wrap around a person's index and middle fingers, and includes a corresponding hook or pile fastener engaging said housing to allow the housing to attach to and detach from a person's index and middle fingers.

23. (New) The computer interface controller of claim 21 wherein said cursor controller includes an optical sensor.

24. (New) The computer interface controller of claim 21 wherein said cursor controller includes a track ball.

25. (New) The computer interface controller of claim 21 wherein said cursor controller includes a touch pad.

26. (New) A computer interface controller including cursor and button controllers, the computer interface controller comprising:

a housing adapted to reside within a person's fingers against a person's index and middle fingers;

affixing means for attaching said housing within a person's fingers to a person's index and middle fingers;

a cursor controller in the form of an optical sensor for providing X-Y control of a cursor on a computer screen, said cursor controller positioned within said housing so as to be controlled by a person's thumb when said housing is attached to a person's index and middle fingers;

a first button member affixed to said housing, said first button member positioned so as to be depressable by a person's index finger when said housing is attached to a person's index and middle fingers; and

The Examiner's attention to the present application is greatly appreciated.

In the recent Office Action, Claim 20 was objected to as being of improper dependent form. This objection has been overcome by cancelling the claim.

Claims 1 - 19 were rejected under 35 U.S.C. §102 as being anticipated by Doynov (U.S. Patent Application Publication No. 2002/0163495). Applicant has now cancelled all previous claims and introduced new Claims 21 - 26 which include substantial structure not previously set forth. More particularly, each and every one of the claims now include the limitation that the housing is adapted to reside within a person's fingers against a person's index and middle fingers. The claims include the limitation that the computer interface controller includes an affixing means for affixing the housing to a person's index and middle fingers. A cursor controller is included within each and every claim which provides for X-Y control of a cursor on a computer screen and the cursor controller is positioned within the housing so as to be controlled by a person's thumb. Finally, each and every one of the claims are limited to require that the computer interface controller includes first and second button members with the first button member positioned so as to be depressable by a person's index finger and the second button member is depressable by a person's middle finger. Several of these limitations are not disclosed or suggested in Doynov or the other prior art.

Doynov describes a cursor control device which is adapted to affix to a person's index finger and a person's wrist. The control device includes an X-Y controller 12 affixed to a person's index finger which is controllable by a person's thumb. Buttons 15 are also affixed to a person's index finger for control by a person's thumb.

In contrast, Applicant's claimed invention includes a housing which is affixed to a person's index and middle fingers. Doynov does not suggest this construction. In addition, Applicant's claimed invention includes button members which are positioned within a person's fingers so as to be depressed by a person's index and middle fingers. Again, these claim limitations are nowhere disclosed or suggested in Doynov.

Because Doynov alone or in combination with other prior art does not disclose several limitations of Applicant's claims, the claims are believed to be in condition for allowance.

CONCLUSION

Claims 21 - 26 are believed allowable and notice thereof is respectfully requested. If there are any additional issues that need to be resolved, it is requested that a telephone call be placed to the undersigned.
